Community Gathering

Providing a community kitchen as to prep and serve food is one part but providing the food it self is the other. Since space will be limited to grow fields of food, growing vertically is a must through use of green wall gardens.

Learning to cook is an essential life skill especially in todays world where an entire "home cooked" meal can come right out of cans or from the freezer. There is nothing better that fresh healthy food when cooked right. But it is expensive and hard. Growing it here controls one factor and learning how affects the other.

Gathering with a large group in a small space is uncomfortable and the same is true for a small group in a large space. That is why having various meeting spaces is a must for a community to be able to thrive.
