Learning a new skill for that you will implement within yourself is one thing but being able to convey that to your employees is another. Management training prepares you for the role a leader plays versus a boss.

Learning how to work on cars; whether it is for a career, to save a few dollars or just for the sense of self worth. It is an invaluable skill to have. Having a place to be is a concept that includes a place to work since in a 40 hour work week, we see our colleagues as much if not more than we see our families. Having the right skills will allow someone to get the Music, like math, is a universal language. It allows people an outlet into something very constructive and creative and has been proven to be very therapeutic. While musicians typically do not make much money, the health benefits are amazing for both the player and the voyeur.
